Stepping into

Chapter 1

Given by the Elders

Transition

Do you recognize that often there are subtleties underway and underfoot, subtleties that will lead you to the path of your preference or perhaps something else? We would say that as you move, you do so with purpose. But when you move listlessly, or you move without a preferred agenda or objective in your future, then how do you move from here to there effectively?

The Original Purpose

And so we would say that when one transitions, they move into an altered space. Altered in that it is not as it is (when) physically placed. We would say when one is physically placed, there is more of a definition of the time in space in which they reside ... physically.

As you move out of the body and into that transitory time, in between embodiments, there is not the anchoring that one might feel while earthbound. And so, it is more of an illusionary premise. Although we would say that when you are in that space, it does feel most vivid and real. And it does feel as if you know all that you need to know because in this space, you are anchored further with the understanding of what you knew before.

What you believed while physically placed is what you are reinforced with during this time. And so all the different perceptions that you held while in the body are anchored and reinforced when out of the body. And so in this time and in this space, there is the illusionary premise that there is an all-knowingness in that existence.

And we will tell you that this is illusionary because when you come from here to there, Earth to transition, you are reinforced by all that you knew while physically placed. And so there is the aha moment that does transcend all time because, during this experience, you are anchored with what you knew to be true, thought to be true, believed to be true. And perhaps it was, or perhaps it was not.

And so we would say that while feet are firmly planted on this Earth, to do all that you can to enlist measures. And to do those things that will further reinforce a knowingness but not from the posture of the mind and not from the posture of ego. For when the mind and ego lay siege on what must become known, and if there is a tinge of inner validation, an inner awareness that is not aligned as it might be when it is more placed toward egoic measure or mind stimulation, and not anchored initially from the heart and the heart center, then you may have an understanding that may be adrift of what truly is.

Transition

When you transition, you move into a space of being given reinforcement of what was believed before. In that space as one does move to progress and adopt what is to occur within a subsequent lifetime, there is not the questioning, there is not the wonderment, nor the understanding of what knowing something else might elicit.

And so we would say it does alter all that does pass and move beyond this time. For it is the structuring, and the planning, and the doing of the objective to prepare for the next step ... to prepare for the next embodiment. To get all the ducks in a row, so to speak, so that as you move to embody once again, you embody with a premise that is devised from this time. And there may be individuals who energetically align and aspire to move into different arenas as well. And you and they do confer and are aligned to move an objective forward.

Perhaps there is a belief that to experience this or that may yield a preferred understanding. But we would say that at this time, there is so much illusion that is in the midst of it all, that there is no longer the plotting and planning toward the original mission and toward the original objective. Although there is a component of one to the other, there is not the underlying and broad-based understanding that had come before.

With the original purpose, there is so much more that was comprised within that so that the fuller measure, the fuller understanding, the energetic component which comprised all these various nuances brought to a head. And so there is in many regards a minimization, a minimizing of what was understood, what might be understood, and what might be enacted.

And when one considers that many have lived from an oppressive state and are oppressed mentally, they then move into this transitory time and do not have the full scope of all is possible. There is a miniaturization and almost an inability to think from a grander regard. To move into more of a broad-based perspective (of) what might be understood were it to be deployed and employed.

In this transitory time, there is a moving from this to that, and then onto something else before the next embodiment is yet to occur. And so we would say to elicit questions during this time. Elicit multiple questions and ask for more to be given. Do not be directed so easily. For when one stops to inquire, when one stops to ask or elicit more, then there is the possibility for more to enter in.

We would say to linger in all regards. And to not move swiftly from here to there. And to pause. And to contemplate. And to move in less illusionary but more realistic terms by calling forth those who did reinforce your life while physically placed, for they are still accessible at this time. For in many regards, they are with you from lifetime to lifetime, and know your struggle, know your accomplishments, and know your objectives.

It is the disconnect from these ones,

Transition

and the disconnect from the greater premise and greater purpose, that does often allow less to be known. And we seek for the maximization, for the full incorporation, for the alignment of the one to become known more fully. So that then when they move, and they enlist to do more, they can do more from a broad-based perspective. They can do and accomplish more in a more uplifted manner. They can do and set about to set intentions so that those who would buoy them up instead of envisioning something of a lower nature, hoping that there would be a realization from that lower space to one of greater precipice.

And we would say that it is the posturing and planning and doing so without enlisting guidance. For there is guidance, but you have greater guidance that is accessible, that is available, that is all about you even in this transitory time. And so we would encourage one to the other, to move from the space of wanting to know more, wanting to enlist all the tools that are available. And those tools are available upon your call, and your recognition of wanting more, (and) of asking and enlisting assistance.

When this does happen, when there is the true calling forth of that which will enable you to know more, to do more, to be more in a subsequent time for the plotting and planning will be done in a more measured way, and will be done in a more uplifted way, and will be done in a way where there are dynamics brought into play that will be of a more significant nature.

Transition

For you see, many that are within the Earth premise today live meagerly and do not feel that there is the expanse within Universe to provide more. Do not feel the abundance from which Universe does exist and offer each within the round of incarnations. And so there is almost an aspect of not believing that there is enough to go around.

And we tell you this is not so. And so when you are in that proposed arena, that area of illusionary wonder, remember this — remember when you ask, more is given. And when you call forth those who are Stewards of your lifestream, those who are Guardians of you, those who are watchers of what you are doing, they await your asking. They await your questioning. They await your wonderment of why they are there and that you even recognize that they are there. For often, they can be so close but yet so far away because there is not the recognition of who they are within the dynamic of the day.

When you move into a transitory position, remember, if nothing else, to ask that all be given that would move you back to your original purpose. Move you back to your original objective for embodying on this physical plane, on this Earth plane. By merely asking, you will open up a dynamic of what more might be given and known so that these things exist with an understanding of all that might be. And that there might be a higher vibrational way to attune and to glean more from the existence from which they will soon be within.
